Fitch Argentina: Acciones de Calificación Resumen Semanal de acciones de calificación del 21 al 25 de febrero de 2011 >LatAm Weekly: Positive 2011 Outlook for LatAm Sovereigns and Chilean Insurance Industry -Featured Special Report: Latin America Sovereign Credit Trends: Likely to Remain Positive Fitch Ratings has upgraded seven Latin American sovereign ratings since 2010, reflecting improvements in credit fundamentals throughout the region. With seven sovereign ratings currently on Positive Outlook, Fitch Ratings believes that sovereign credit trends in Latin America could improve further in 2011. After posting above-potential GDP growth in 2010 following the economic contraction in 2009, most regional economies are expected to slow towards their potential in 2011 due to the gradual withdrawal of expansionary economic policies throughout the region. However, economic growth will continue to proceed at multiple speeds. Inflation is expected to trend upwards in 2011 due to rising commodity prices, deteriorating inflation expectations and continued momentum in domestic demand in many of the regional economies. Fitch Ratings believes that the region's current account imbalances will remain modest and international reserves are expected to continue to increase this year, reducing the region's vulnerability to external shocks even further. -Featured Special Report: Industria de Seguros Chilena: Revisión y Perspectivas 2011 The Chilean insurance industry grew rapidly in 2010 (20% in Q310), with estimated total premiums written exceeding USD8.5 billion for FY2010 (two thirds of which corresponded to life insurance premiums). The increase was driven by a recovery in economic activity, a low comparative base and an active non-life insurance industry in H210 after the catastrophic earthquake struck the central-southern region of Chile in February 2010. While premiums grew at a double-digit rate in both the non-life (11.5%) and life-insurance (24.7%) segments, net earnings for the industry as a whole remained virtually unchanged versus Q309, as claims and reinstatement costs of catastrophic protections in the non-life insurance segment offset the positive performance of investments, particularly in the life insurance segment. Fitch Ratings believes that net results may improve substantially in 2011, in the absence of any significant natural disaster.
